Head's Message

Another action packed week at ARK Conway this week with visitors, performances, competition entries and lots more!

On Monday we were visited by Nicky Morgan, Secretary of State for Education, and Sajid Javid, Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport. They were here because of our outstanding success in all areas and particularly to talk to children and adults about music. It was an incredibly proud moment for everyone when Year 3 pupils performed their Gala Show song and the whole school performed our school song. Sajid Javid was particularly impressed with our school song and quickly learnt our five core values of: respect, aspiration, honesty, perseverance and happiness.

Year 2 have been working hard on a project for a competition called 'The World Book Day Award' designed to celebrate and promote 'Reading for Pleasure'. They have been discussing what the world would be like without books, and parents will be able to see the plays they have put together on Friday 6th March, the day after World Book Day.

We are also preparing to enter a fundraising art project which involves an art auction hosted by Ark and Bank of America Merrill Lynch. The theme is dreams and aspirations; we will keep you updated.

Next week we have our Year 1 Class Assembly on Friday morning and a Year 3 trip to visit a mosque as part of their RE curriculum on Monday. Year 2 children will be taking part in a Maths Challenge and Reception will be enjoying their learning outside, whatever the weather, in their new outdoor classroom.

Whatever you're doing, have a wonderful weekend!
